Our Heritage

John Essig

John Essig

The citizens of Fairfax County were so intimately involved in the founding and fortunes of our Nation, that reminders of this heritage are part of our daily life. Names such as Washington, George Mason, Mosby, Fairfax, Braddock, and Lee are used to describe places in our community or are encountered at numerous local historical sites. Our daily travel to our school on Old Lee Highway takes us by signs such as "Site of raid by John S. Mosby", or "Here Lee turned north to Antietam." We pass Camp Washington and see signs directing us to the Manassas Battlefield or to Sully Plantation. We engage in athletic contests with high schools with names such as Madison, J.E.B. Stuart, Lee, Braddock, and Mount Vernon. The ties to the past have been so strong that following the consolidation of the high schools at Oakton and Clifton, in 1935, to form Fairfax High, our athletic teams became known as "The Rebels."

"Somewhere in the past there was a vision — a day-dream built upon faith in the youth of coming generations and in the future of education — a day-dream having as its ultimate goal a great institution building sterling characters, developing leadership, and making for a scholarship that might be put to work in the world.

For that vision — no longer a flimsy dream, but finding its embodiment in Fairfax High School — we are indeed grateful."

Time goes by and things change, but we still have our traditional Homecoming Queen and her Court. During homecoming week we vote for the most popular Senior girl to reign as Homecoming Queen. The suspense builds, then during halftime of the homecoming game the winner is announced.

This year's Homecoming Queen is Lisa Whitten and the runner-up is Missy Cox.

The weather forecast called for rain commencing Friday afternoon, continuing through the evening. As students gathered at Van Dyck Park for the start of the homecoming parade, clouds darkened the sky. It looked as if rain would ruin the evening.

"What about the floats?" was an often heard question. Many expressed concerns like, "What will happen to the game?" and, "How about the halftime ceremony?"

The parade was a success and at halftime the Rebels were on their way to a victory over J.E.B. Stuart, but the sky was still threatening. Lisa Whitten was crowned Homecoming Queen with Missy Cox named as runner-up. In the excitement and emotion of the ceremony the weather was forgotten and attention focused on the Junior Class' winning float, the "Spirit of Adventure."

As the final gun signaled a 41 to 14 Rebel win, the first drops of rain began to fall.

On country day students were decked out in overalls, straw hats, and painted freckles. In bright red overalls, red checked shirt, braids, and freckles, Elizabeth Forrester received the prize for best dressed. On dress-up day students adorned themselves in skirts, high heels, and three-piece suits. Larry Lapensee took the prize for wearing a handsome three-piece suit. Jersey day was the expression of favorite numbers and ball teams, whether high school, college or pro. LeAnne Mooney in her favorite Rebel jersey won first prize on this day. Hat day was probably the wildest and craziest day, and the most creative. The majority of students found cowboy or baseball hats to be the most comfortable. But dad's old derbies, mom's old veiled hats, and even replicas of Davy Crockett's racoon-skin found their way into Fairfax. Sally Storey won with her hat depicting Woodstock and the taco stand. Although many students lacked the time during float building to plan for red, white and blue day, they managed more than they knew. Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors and members of the band arrived at school tired and overworked and mostly, with bloodshot eyes. This did not deny them, however, of the satisfaction of finishing their float and seemed to give them adequate reason to show their pearly whites. Also, because of lack of preparation, students came decked out in blue jeans, blue tennis shoes, or blue emotions because of the weatherman's prediction of rain for homecoming evening. The winner, however, was Pam Damon.

Powder Puff Proves Misnomer

After weeks of intense practices, the senior women confronted the junior girls on a blustery November 12. This confrontation had been hard fought for, and both teams were anxious to play. The game started with the juniors in possession of the ball. The game commenced with strong defense, and the halftime score remained 0-0.

The second half started as the seniors with their war painted faces, took possession of the ball. Again, defense for both teams held up not yielding to the other team's strength.

Four minutes into the 3rd quarter, the senior offense began to move. Passes were caught, and holes were made in the junior defensive line. Diane Stephens ran the ball on a reverse play for 40 yards down to the junior 25. Pam Baughman followed up with a 6 yard run for the game's only score.

Several girls were getting hurt. Late in the 3rd quarter, Sedef Onder received a spiral fracture to her left pinky plus breaks in several places. After this, Mr. Sutterfield called the game on the basis of "unsportsmanlike conduct". "It was supposed to be fun, but it wasn't", he stated later. So who won the 1980 Powder Puff game? That question remains in the minds of all the players. As Diane Stephens said, "I hope the referees are more understanding next year."

The "Marching Rebels" acquired a new touch of class this year as they laid aside their 20 year old traditional uniforms to don the "corps" style marching uniforms. This style was selected for a more up-to-date look in lighter more practical fabrics.

Plans for the new uniforms originated with the Band Boosters almost five years ago. Since the School Board does not provide funds for band uniforms, the last five years have involved a concentrated fund raising effort by both boosters and students. The Fairfax City Council gave a much appreciated boost in the form of $7,000, but the majority of the needed $15,000 came from various fund raising projects. As Mr. Hynes, the Band Director, says, "Most of my time is devoted to running the Fairfax County Store."

The support of the Band Boosters was crucial in helping to pay for the new look, but without the help of Mrs. Kirkpatrick, a former band parent, all units would not have been outfitted at the start of this year. When the manufacturer could not meet the delivery schedule, the fabric was shipped to Mrs. Kirkpatrick who made many of the Flag Corps uniforms.

Bloodmobile Visits the Rebels

During the onset of the first period, Stacy Night bravely rolled up his sleeve to become the first donor in the S.G. sponsored November bloodmobile. This is an event that occurs twice a year, both in the Fall and in the Spring. Among those to donate were Principal Drayer and numerous 11th and 12th graders who courageously volunteered during English classes the previous week. Of the prospective 114 contributors, 78 actually donated to surpass the goal of 65 pints.

Rebel Fire Fighters

Fairfax students serve the community as volunteer fire fighters and emergency medical technicians (EMT). Student interest in the fire service is not a new phenomenon. The class of '45 will recall duty with the FHS Fire Patrol and the FHS Forrest Fire Patrol. In recent years many students have served with the volunteers and career men of Company 3.

Qualification as a volunteer fire fighter requires successful completion of 64 hours of basic training at the County Fire Training Center. Volunteers may also qualify as an EMT by taking a 90 hour course and then passing a State examination.

The training of both career and volunteer fire service personnel is a continuing process. Drills and training sessions are regular activities at the station.

Company 3 First Due

Volunteers live at the fire station while on duty. They respond together with the career fire fighters to all kinds of emergencies such as automobile accidents, house fires, and rescue missions. Company 3 has primary responsibility, or "first due", for Fairfax City and part of the surrounding County.

A recent State law requires that volunteer fire fighters must be 18 years old before they may ride as a duty person in ambulances or on fire equipment. This has considerably curtailed the activities of several Fairfax High School volunteers. However, most are continuing to drill and train in order to resume their fully active status on their 18th birthday.

The World of Work

The world of work has gained a commitment from many Fairfax students. The extent of this involvement is unknown, but a recent survey of student activities suggests that at least 200 are regularly employed. Student Government leaders have recognized the impact of student employment upon participation in school based activities.

Students have found employment in a variety of jobs. However, restaurants and retail stores appear to hire the majority of those in the world of work.

School programs such as Guidance, Distributive Education, Business Education, Vocational/Industrial Education, and Home Economics are often used by the business community to locate students with special skills and interests.

Horse Country

Fairfax County is "horse country" and the horse show is the most visible part of this tradition. Many Fairfax High School students ride occasionally and at least twenty are regularly involved in show competition.

Most show events are judged on the performance of the horse and rider working together to display specific standards of form, movement, and discipline. The graceful beauty of horse and rider executing a flawless performance is enhanced by the natural beauty of Northern Virginia.

On Track

The excitement of drag racing attracts Fairfax students to Old Dominion Speedway. Each Sunday, from March to November, the Manassas countryside reverberates with the roar of overpowered cars.

Spectators watch the line-up of "cars" waiting for their moment at the starting line. These "cars" vary from sparkling customized stock cars to the bizarre machines designed for drag racing only.

An area to the rear of the starting line is set aside for drivers to "warm the slicks" in order to improve traction. Here, one or two cars can usually be seen setting with engines screaming and steam engulfing the treadless rear tires that are spinning on water lubricated pavement.

A race commences with a green light at the starting line. On this signal the cars leap forward with the drivers intent upon covering the one eighth mile course in the shortest time.

Off Campus Sports

Fairfax students take part in the team sports, band, and drill team sponsored by the Fairfax Police Youth Club (FPYC). These students participate as members of teams and organizations, as coaches, and as officials.

The Recreation Departments of Fairfax City and Fairfax County provide activities for citizens of all ages. Students with special skills are hired to act as instructors in these programs.

Fairfax students also seek participation in individual and team sports such as AAU swimming competition, scuba diving, bowling, bicycle racing, and motocross.

Every year we recognize a "Peppy and Johnny" from the Senior Class. From various clubs and classes, an infamous court of spirited rowdies and rowdiettes assembles before the students for an overall inspection and vote. This year, the assembly was highlighted with belly-flop skids across the stage, pep talks of being "bad," and the suspicious loss of a favored Johnny candidate. Through all the madness and laughter they were chosen. Congratulations to Diane and Bill.

"The Joys" of Sponsoring '81

As I look back upon the past three years in which I have worked with the Class of '81, I recall many incidents such as car washes on hot summer days because the class fund was in the red, the stapling of red roses to white latticed arches, the mopping of a sticky floor caused by a coke machine gone beserk, the tying off of ballons for Prom decorations until our fingers were sore, the stuffing and addressing of nine hundred invitations three days before the Prom, the sweeping of the cafeteria floor after dances, and the signing of forms, forms and more forms! These are the visual images which spring to mind, yet the real memories are of the heart; such as the pride in seeing good actions done as they ought to be, the joy of individual accomplishments and successes, the happiness in seeing the acceptance of responsibilities and the development of self-reliance and self-respect, and, too, a bit of sorrow is saying "farewell." While this class will go on to accept the challenges of, and to take their rightful places in the adult world, I do not feel that I have suffered a loss, for in knowing and working with, and, yes, even caring for these young people I have acquired "the joys . . . which are ever mine."

Chaucer's inquisitive squire (impersonated by Lang Best) presented the virtues of medieval life to Senior madhatters.

Insights, encounters, American and British literature form the healthy skeleton of the English Department's four-year curriculum. There was no escaping a heavy dosage of grammar and spelling to cure the ill-begotten sentence. Though some students feared (ad nauseum) they would not survive the quarter, there were rays of healing sunlight along the way.

A lively group in Ms. Johnson's class gave illustrated speeches. Ms. Lange's English 12 brought characters from the Canterbury Tales to life and her English 9 classes acted out scenes from Romeo and Juliet in costume and with props. Mr. Suterfield's students proposed many modest ideas to change society.

Imagine the year 1911 . . . Fairfax is a rural community in which people either farm or raise stock. The only school in the area is a red brick building with white pillars that is operated as a "one room" schoolhouse. Life is relatively simple and secure.

So it was for my Grandmother, Esther Serina Thompson, who graduated from the Fairfax School in 1911. The building housing the Fairfax School still stands next to the old Fairfax Elementary School on Route 236.

Esther Thompson married William Jennings Good. Their only child, Doris Jean Good, grew up in Fairfax and graduated in 1945 from Fairfax High school which was then located on Route 50.

The family tradition of commencement from Fairfax Schools will be carried on when I graduate from Fairfax High School on June 10, 1981. I'm proud to graduate from a school of which my family has been a part since 1911.

To most, a typical year for a Junior Class Sponsor involves the same mundane, ordinary, boring activities peculiar to any mother who happens to have 300 children (give or take 50).

As most busy mothers do, the Junior Class Sponsor makes lists of household chores, etc. A peek at the "TO DO" list the sponsor prepares at the beginning of the school year might look like this:

— check bank account for available funds
— declare bankruptcy
— brainstorm re: fund-raising
— schedule big dance — if you find out nobody's going
— offer to play guitar with rock band, make fool out of yourself and . . .
— deposit $900.00 profit from new career!
— brainstorm for more money
— visit ballrooms and make choice for prom — be prepared for malcontents in May
— raise funds
— lower blood pressure
— get prom band
— take mini-course for sponsors called "How To Haggle with Band Promoters" or "Can We Can Get Appaloosa For less than $1500."
— sign contract
— be prepared to sign life away
— raise funds
— raise the devil
— Homecoming-buy napkins
— find volunteers
— vote on theme

Yes, to most it is a typical, boring, mediocre existence. To some, it means loving and being loved. It means happy tears, winning the Homecoming Float prize, late hours, financial headaches, and hard-working, appreciative kids. Most of all, it means being Mom to the greatest class Fairfax High School ever had . . . "'82 can do" — ANYTHING!!!

Shannon Still Riding High

U. S. International Games Team member, Shannon Czina, and her Appaloosa.

Shannon Czina continues to win honors in international riding games competition. She competed in Scotland during August, 1979, as one of the five top age 16-17 equestriennes in the United States. Since that time, she has been selected as one of two girls in her age group for membership on the U. S. International Games Team.

International riding competition is particularly demanding, for, as Shannon explained, "You must compete on several horses, not just your own with which you are familiar."

Shannon is looking forward to participating with the U. S. Team in the riding games to be held in Canada during the summer of '81.

Coach Ward's enthusiastic "class" has difficulty spelling their school's name.

Once again, the Pigskin Pow Wow tradition returned to Fairfax High. The mighty Juniors of the Varsity football team that were chosen for their skill and spirit competed for the honor of being named leader of the tribe.

In the past, the swaggering "chiefs" strutted down the aisles of the auditorium to the beating of tom-toms, escorted by their favorite "squaw." This year, unlike any other, the Pigskin Pow Wow was done a bit differently with the help of Coach Ward and the cheerleaders in a "classroom" skit.

Each member of the student body voted for the "brave" of their choice. This year's addition to the Pigskin Hall of Fame was "Chief Nationwide", Jeff Hamilton.

A Beautiful Experience

Corbett Buford

Juniors put the finishing touches on the "Spirit of Adventure."

While the traditional bouquets of roses were being presented to the Homecoming Queen and runner-up, the Junior Class was presenting a bouquet of roses to a lady seated among the spectators to the halftime ceremony. This lady, the Mother of Ami Thompson, had become a hero to those involved in building the class float.

For the second time in their career as Rebel parents, the Thompson family hosted a float building. Mrs. Thompson almost forgot the color of the family room carpet as it rested under a storm of white tissue "flowers" that seemed to fall endlessly for almost three weeks. Mr. Thompson ignored his red, white, and blue lawn with a remaining patch of green that reminded one of the silhouette of a conestoga wagon. But, stoic acceptance did not satisfy the Thompson's desire to be involved.

Mrs. Thompson served gallons of chili and hot chocolate to those toiling in the often frigid air. Both of Ami's parents stayed up past three in the morning one night to help guard and construct the prize winning float.

The mood was infectious as several neighbors, the Carouthers in particular, joined the construction crew. Mr. Drayer received telephone calls from the neighbors; not to complain, but to praise the conduct and true spirit of the students participating.

There were also heroes among the students. Doug Dowell, chairman of the Junior Homecoming Committee, appeared to be everywhere at once making things happen. He was assisted by several enthusiastic and tireless workers such as Chuck Hacherl, Greg Harrison, Paula Woodrum, Sue Goff, Mark Grab, Sarah Pease, Angie Smallwood, Melanie Stewart, Rick Powell, and Pam Reynolds. A special thanks was also earned by Curtis Neal with his bright red pick-up truck.

Mrs. Larsen, the class sponsor, described the float building as a "beautiful experience." The roses for Mrs. Thompson, and the gifts sent to the Thompson family, showed that the Junior Class knew why it was beautiful.

Greg, an Old but New Fencer

Greg Kaidanov

I started to fence when I was six or seven. Usually no one begins to fence at this age, but my father wanted to make me a very good fencer. I liked fencing, but I had some trouble with my trainers because my father wanted me to train myself; on my own. I have been fencing on and off for some time and have tried other sports. I was better at some of these than at fencing, but I like fencing more than anything else in the sports world. This may be because all my friends were fencers, and my father always wanted me to go back to fencing.

Our family immigrated from Russia, to Viena, and then to Rome where my father worked in one of the best fencing clubs in Europe. Then we came to live in New York and from there to Fairfax.

I have decided to make fencing the permanent sport in my life. I now fence at the Salled' Armes, where my father teaches. I still don't take lessons from him, as it is hard for him to think of me as his pupil rather than his son. I like fencing and enjoy competition since making fencing part of my life. Now fencing for me is "a new, old thing."

Rebel Trap Shooters Win First Place

Fairfax High School has been recognized as a home of championship trap shooters. Six students formed a team and won first place in competition at Bull Run Park with teams representing other area schools. The team, five Sophomores and one Freshman, is coached by John Linn's father. "It takes a lot of practice to hit moving targets, but it pays off when you win," comments David Tempesco.

Accepting the first place trophy from Mr. Drayer are Trap Shooting Team members D. Tempesco, D. Prochaszka, J. Linn, and J. Simione. Not pictured are D. Shifflet and J. Lofgren.

Swimming Pool on the Roof???

The first day of school was, for many freshmen, the worst day of their lives. As Michelle Goulart puts it, " . . . I got lost going to every class. I wouldn't ask any other kids where the classrooms were because I was afraid of what they would say." Another freshman, Jerry French says, "The first day of school was a bloody maze. It took 10-15 minutes to find a class." "At the end of school they don't tell you where the bus parks so you have to run around and by that time they're gone", was the distress of Mark Picciano. Jean Pettit phrases the first day as, "like going to a prison camp." James Prochnik had a complicated day for the most part: "that I was approached by seemingly every senior alive wondering if I wanted an elevator pass to the swimming pool on the roof."

Then there was the positive freshmen crowd, who all put a good word in for their first day at Fairfax High. Says Michele Graves, "The first days of school were really exciting. The large amount of people, the classes, everything about this new experience was thrilling." Fairfax got good ratings when compared with junior highs. As put by Chuck Shewbridge, "Fairfax High School is a lot more fun than junior high ever was."

Some of this year's "Baby Rebs" were amazed at the size of Fairfax. As colorfully illustrated by Patrick James. "Fairfax High School is a mammoth institution; its dimensions and magnitude are left unsurpassed by any high school in Virginia."

There were many experiences of being lost in this "mammoth institution." One was described by Bill McRaney as his only and repeated conversation on the first day of school: "Take the first right, then left and it's the third door on your right." But one freshman still found her classes because she says, "Even though I didn't know where I was going, I always ended up in the right place."

Presenting the F.H.S. Symphonic Band!

This year's Symphonic Band was comprised of 56 hard working students. It was under the direction of Mr. Matt Hynes who was the Band Director at Fairfax High School for the past 17 years. Mr. Hynes retired at the end of this school year and plans to spend his time boating and sight seeing.

The Symphonic Band presented its annual Christmas Concert on the 18th of December. Prior to the concert, Mr. Hynes was called out of town unexpectedly and a student teacher, Ms. Linda Davis, took over. She did a fantastic job working with the band and conducting the band during the concert. Ms. Davis is a student of music education at James Madison University. The second concert of the year was performed on the 12th of February in the FHS Auditorium.

Mr. Hynes and the band competed in a national competition at Wildwood, New Jersey, during May. Band members earned the money for the trip by selling candy, sausage and cheese, etc. from "Uncle Matt's Fairfax Store."

Warming up . . .

The Concert Band consisted mostly of Freshmen and Sophomores with a few Juniors and Seniors. Missing some of the most important instruments this year, Concert Band got by with help from Symphonic Band's lower brass section. Despite the lack of some instruments, The Concert Band enjoyed a good year, and many skills were learned that will help those members preparing for next year's Symphonic Band. The highlight of the year was the Wildwood, New Jersey, Music Festival which was attended by Concert Band, Symphonic Band, and Jazz Lab.

Jazz Lab Makes Great Sounding Music

The Jazz Lab is a group of talented musicians, working as a team to make great sounding music. Using instruments varying from the electric guitar to the superbone, all types of rock and jazz music are performed. Ad libing is just one of the ways in which the group has learned to explore and expand their musical talents.

Jazz Lab is very much involved in the community and in scholastic activities through performances at the Junior Miss Pageant, at Band Boosters meetings, in elementary and junior high school assemblies, and in state and national level competitions. This high degree of involvement gives an indication of the dedication of Jazz Lab members.

From 9:00 to 12:00 each weekday morning, for two weeks before school opens, the marching band practices under the hot August sun. During marching season, the band is on the field for practice nine hours each week and performs every Friday night. Why do students willingly endure the long hours and discomforts of marching? Ask a Marching Band member and they invariably say, "It's fun, and you make new friends."

The 1980 marching season included performances at all pep rallies and home football games, winning third place in the Vienna Halloween Parade, participating in the Robinson Marching Spectacular, and many impromptu in-school performances.

Chorale Scores With "Fiddler"

Jeff Campbell

Mr. Wygal directs a very serious piece of music.

It's amazing how a group can pull together and make a performance look so easy. The Fairfax High School Chorale has managed to do just that. With the help of Ms. Ann Mindum and Mr. Fred Wygal, the Chorale made selections from "Fiddler on the Roof" live in both sound and motion. Choreography was a new and interesting experience for the Chorale. After weeks of after school practice, the Chorale finally mastered all the steps that were required to make "Fiddler" a success. Darrell Borrelli was the narrator and, in the middle of the performance, Steve Thuot, Jon Pulliam, and David Schaller acted out a portion of the play. Finally, all the hard work paid off when the Chorale performed for their parents and friends at the annual "Sno-Show." They also performed at Fairview Elementary School, Lanier Intermediate School, and a special performance for other elementary schools was held here at Fairfax High School.

INVOLVEMENT

One of the main things heard in the Choral Department this year other than beautiful music, is the voice of Mr. Wygal telling every member how important it is to have everyone working together to make this year and all its activities a success. This is shown quite well by the Rebel Run Singers who have been invited to perform at many functions this year. During the Christmas Season, they performed for the Rotary Club, for County Officials, and for many other civic organizations. They also competed in the Virginia Jazz Festival at James Madison University.

The Fairfax Singers did their share of fund raising to finance a possible trip. In addition to performing in the three annual concerts, they kept busy holding bake sales, selling ornaments at Christmas, and other fund raisers. In all, 1980-81 was a great year for the Choral Department.

Drama

Before the Stage

John Essig

Stage manager Carol Hodge just loves moving props.

This year a new drama organization was formed here at school. Fairfax Stage was created after the first drama production, "A Thurber Carnival," to involve students with drama-related activities through the school year.

Sponsored by Mr. Slautich, Fairfax Stage gives students a chance to learn about all aspects of drama. This includes set building, publicity, directing, lighting, and sound, as well as acting.

Eventually, Fairfax Stage hopes to sponsor school activities, go to professional theaters and perform at local schools and hospitals. The organization looks forward to increased growth in the 1981-82 school year.

Drama. The word creates a myriad of images ranging from early Greek theater to avant-garde films. Dramatic arts cover such a wide range of styles that nearly everyone can find some aspect that they enjoy. Whether it is performing, working behind the scenes, writing, or just viewing, experiencing drama is satisfying.

For me, the fascination lies in acting. It seems to be a noble goal, becoming so submerged in a role that you become the character. That type of mastery of the art of acting comes only with years of practice, but the knowledge thah it is possible is tantalizing bait to follow a dramatic career.

Not that other areas of drama aren't equally rewarding and challenging. For example, when doing the lighting, you have to know exactly when to dim or cut the lights so that the best effect is created. Once again, perfection comes with years of hard work and practice. Sound, construction, publicity, direction, production . . . the list goes on. All are jobs that require special skills or talents and persistent dedication. All offer gratifying rewards, whether it be a friend complimenting you on a performance . . . or seeing your name in lights!

The End is Near!

The Yearbook Staff returned to school in the Fall to find that they had a new sponsor, Mr. Stephens. Even though he did not know anything about "yearbooking," he quickly learned all the skills and more. He was a great help to the Sampler Staff of 1981. As the year started out, the first deadline was met by the "skin of our teeth." Throughout the year, many nights and week-ends were spent writing copy, re-doing layouts, etc.

The Yearbook Staff was a very dedicated group of people who were willing to give a lot in order to make the 1981 Sampler a reality. They put the book together with some hard work, resolved and unresolved conflicts, a little understanding, and a bit of love.

As a service to FHS and the community, Sound, Lighting and Stage Crew, better known as "AV Tech Crew," plans and operates the sound and lighting systems of the auditorium and the fieldhouse. Activities served include concerts, assemblies, pep rallies, class meetings, Junior Miss and Miss Fairfax Contests, and productions by non-school organizations.

To be a member of this elite social, academic, and technical organization, a trainee must pass a number of tests following one and one-half semesters of training in the operation and trouble shooting of the light and sound systems. Tough? Yes, but these guys are dedicated to being the best.

Fair Facts Presses Excellence

Fair Facts Reporters: First row: C. Turner — J. Glidden — A. Colcord. Second row: A. Wakeham — M. Lewis — M. Clark — L. Ware — M. Mayers.

Despite the absence of a journalism class, Fair Facts had a productive year, producing a newspaper which reflected much effort and fine planning by the entire staff.

With each issue came the monthly planning meeting, at which editor-in-chief, Brian Kane, and sponsor, Mr. MacCaffray would call all the page editors together to decide the contents of that month's paper. Stories, photographs, artwork, and ads were assigned by page editors to the reporters, artists, and photographers on the staff. News page coverage school and community happenings such as Homecoming and drama productions. News editors, Emily Glidden and Melissa Hogue, manned the news department. Feature page, edited by Lisa Wakeham and Mary Petersen, ran features ranging in content from shoplifting to movie and reviews. Alex Turner's editorial page provoked student thought about topics such as Senior privileges and vandalism. Sports page reported the results of FHS sporting events throughout the year. Sports editors were Bob Kublawi and Margaret Halstead.

After all the stories were turned in, page editors edited the copy and sent it on to Brian Kane for final review. When Brian finished, copy was sent to the Northern Virginia Sun to be printed on waxed sheets. Then, this waxed copy was sent back to Fair Facts for lay-out, which kept some editors at school until 7:30 P.M. In the lay-out process, headline spacing, page balance and copy spacing were the major difficulties which the editors encountered.

Finally, the layed out copy was taken by Mr. MacCaffray to the printer, who prints the paper to be handed to the student of FHS.

Meandering through a mélange of monumental and miniscule memoirs, mysteries, motifs, masterpieces, morals, maxims, marvels, mirths and muses!

There were many varied responses to Matrix submissions.

Sealed Wednesdays in room A-19, members of the Matrix staff read over 50 poems of unrequited love, a James Bondian mini-novel revealing the exploits of American and Soviet intelligence agents, poems and prose — all mysteries and marvels of the human mind.

The eight member staff scanned the walls and archives of the Art Department, checked desk tops, and almost pilfered E's locker for a most impressive sketch.

When all was assembled, copy typed and layouts drawn, they hoped to have produced another award-winning publication. In 1980, the Columbia Scholastic Press Association denoted the Matrix a First Place literary-art magazine. Another First Place was awarded by Southern Interscholastic Press Association.

Above all, the staff encouraged the artists, photographers, and authors of FHS to produce a magazine to win the approval of a discriminating student body. The Matrix is the gift of a small but dedicated group, by the students to the students.

During school year 1980-81, the Fairfax High Keyettes upheld their motto, "We Serve," by serving the school and the community. Keyettes began the year by holding a breakfast to welcome back the teachers. The club also helped to welcome parents by serving refreshments and acting as guides. The girls of the club enjoyed judging children's costumes at Fairfax City's Halloween Costume Contest. Aside from their thoroughly successful annual dinner for Senior Citizens of the community, the Keyettes also sold coupons to benefit those participating in the Special Olympics. Throughout the year the members sold carnations for various occassions and held bake sales to raise money to fund their major production of the year, the Miss Fairfax Contest. The months of hard work created a professional production considered the best in the area. The Keyettes take pride in the fact that, because of the success of the Miss Fairfax Contest, they were able to serve the community by contributing to the Northern Virginia Child Development Center.

Interact Equals Service . . . Spirit . . . Fun . . .

Interact is a group of students involved in service, school spirit, and fun. They participate in community as well as school service projects, but the members still find time for club social events.

The highlight of in-school service was the homecoming bonfire built by Interact. Actually, there were two bonfires this year. Interact members completed collecting and stacking the wood on Wednesday for the bonfire scheduled for Thursday night. Vandals torched the site late Wednesday night and it looked on Thursday morning as though the homecoming bonfire might have to be cancelled. With the help of Fairfax City, undaunted Interact members were able to find enough wood to rebuild in time for the Rebel spirit to blaze on schedule.

Community service centerd on the sponsorship of an underprivileged Brazilian girl, affectionately nicknamed "Little Lupe." Another community activity involving Interact was assisting with Senior Citizens' square dances held on several Saturdays during the winter.

They Were Everywhere

The 1980-81 Publications Photographic Staff was made up of four staff photographers, Mike Bushey, John Essig, Chris Pflieger, and Rod Spelman. They were also six associate photographers, Corbett Buford, Jeff Campbell, Tim Ducharme, Mike Essig, Robyne Reynolds, and John Will. These photographers were very much in evidence at sports events, assemblies, pep rallies, and class and club functions. However, few students realize the hundreds of hours of darkroom work that went into their job. The staffs of the yearbook, the literary magazine, and the newspaper are grateful to these dedicated people for the quality pictures provided.

The International Relations Club, sponsored by Mr. Roman, is an organization for students interested in the United Nations and / or foreign relations. The club members who attend the Model United Nations represent delegates from foreign countries and the United States. Simulated U.N. committees closely parallel the structures and methods of the U.N. and provide an atmosphere that promotes the development of delegates' research, debate, and negotiatory skills. They provide a forum for debate on controversial issues throughout the world, such as the Iranian Crisis, apartheid, the question of Palestine, nuclear disarmament, world hunger, and many others. Delegates research the policies of the country they represent, and adhere to them while dealing with current issues.

Each November, the International Relations Club hosts a Model U.N. The club plays the role of Secretariat, while new members gain experience as delegates. Students from other Fairfax County Schools also assume the role of delegates.

International Relations Club is a unique learning experience and a chance to associate with other students that should not be passed-up.

The German Honor Society has been in existence at Fairfax High School since 1964, with a brief hiatus from 1976 through 1978. Our goals have been service, self-improvement, involvement, and recognition for academic excellence.

A number of our members have gone on to use their German as part of their career skills. Some have found their expertise in tutoring skills gained here to be a lucrative aid to education. One alumna has made as much as ten dollars an hour tutoring in conversational German and was invited on a European trip, including Scotland and Wales, as a result of her work and her value as a translator.

The Student Advisory Council (SAC) regularly has five members; four Area Representatives and one County Representative, who serves as the Chairperson for the school's SAC. Every high school in the County has a Student Advisory Council that serves as a representative body for student opinion and concerns. Studies are made of the proposals that the County School Board is considering, and often the SAC makes recommendations or requests to the School Board in the interest of student welfare.

This year, the Area IV Student Advisory Council has dealt primarily with substance abuse. In this regard a student survey will be administered to students from each high school.

The County SAC has spent most of this year studying Fairfax County's Sex Education Program. The County SAC has formally adopted a proposal for a revised sex education program, and will present this at a County School Board Meeting. These are examples of the ways in which the SAC strives to represent students' opinions, needs, and concerns.

National Honor Society began the year without a sponsor. The first meeting in September was called primarily to recruit a new sponsor. Members voted and ranked candidates selected from the faculty. Finally, at the end of November, Mr. Ratliff was dubbed Sponsor of National Honor Society.

The National Honor Society accepted new members in January, mainly juniors, but also a few Seniors. To be inducted, applicants had to meet various requirements with regard to academic achievement, leadership, character, service, and citizenship.

First was the academic requirement in which the applicant's grade point average had to be no less than 3.5. Second the applicants had tp prepare essays on the remaining requirements. Third, they filled out an activity sheet listing the extent of their participation in activities and had the Sponsor sign for verification.

The final requirement was to have six teachers / sponsors / administrators read and validate the applicant's essays. A special teacher / administrator committee then reviewed the applications and selected the inductees.

As a result of this time-consuming effort, the new members received a carnation from the National Honor Society President, Stacy Night, signifying admittance into this exclusive club. This was a moment to be proud of: becoming a member of the National Honor Society.

Numbers Up for . . .

Fairfax High School's Junior Math Team achieved an outstanding record this year, as shown by its rating of eighth in the County out of 23 schools. The top scorer was Freshman Valerie Beattie who was also the top scorer in the County. Dave Gano, another Freshman, closely followed Valerie in the scoring. The Team, sponsored by Mr. Michael Stueben, practiced nearly every week during the year to obtain these honors.

The Fairfax Math Team was tied for seventh place in a field of 24 teams in the County following the fourth meet. It has also been rated fifth out of 67 teams, after three meets, in the State.

The four Team Captains are Brian Bohall, Jim Mitsumata, Mik Mitsumata, and Alex Turner. Top scorer, at mid-season, was John Handwork with 154 points. Other members scoring high included Brain Bohall (141 points), Mike Mitsumata (138 points), Denise Beattie (131 points), Paul Perazzoli (122 points), Thomas Sutto (120 points), Alex Turner (117 points), Jimmy Mitsumata (111 points), Stacy Night (108 points), and Mark Grabb (105 points).

There are about 35 Fairfax Students that attend the meets that take place on Tuesdays and Thursdays. A State level meet consists of six problems in a thirty minute time period, as compared to County meets in which contestants receive six individual timed problems. The sponsor, Mr. Eugene Sabo, assisted by Ms. Sarah Layne and Ms. Joan Quill supervise the local meets.

Strictly Speaking, They're the Best!

The Forensics Team is probably better known to the student body as the "public speaking team." It is different from many other activities in that the students compete primarily on an individual basis. The Fairfax Team belongs the Northern Virginia Speech League and the Virginia High School League. The members compete once each month against students from other area high schools. There are nine categories of competition ranging from oral reading of published works to delivering original pieces and speeches. We are constantly building our team and looking for new talent. Any student who wants to gain experience speaking before a group is welcome to join the team.

This year was not a banner year for the Plant Club. With a new sponsor, the club had planned many projects. For Christmas they had planned to sell Poinsettias on the last day of school before vacation, but we did not come to school on that day because of an ice storm. This was just the first in a series of disasters. On one occasion, the sprinkler system was left on over night and drowned all the plants. Later, the sprinkler system was shut off for a weekend and the plants did not get watered and died. The Club members are looking forward to next year for they feel it can only get better.

Nando Greco, Student Government President

A Productive Year for Student Government

As the central organization of elected student leaders, Student Government has three main responsibilities. The first is one of leadership with Student Government sponsoring activities such as homecoming. The second is one of communication. Student Government sponsors daily announcements and publicizes activities such as football games and drama productions. The third is one of representation. Student Government acts as the voice of the Student Body on issues affecting our school. These are responsibilities which require a lot of hard work, cooperation, and open-mindedness.

All of the members helped the Homecoming Chairpersons, Margaret Shewbridge and Bill Wilkinson, plan a week of successful activities. Although they were a little squeamish about it, the members also helped with the Blood-Mobile, which proved to be highly successful because of their assistance.

Always trying to be as democratic as possible, the Student Government promotes student involvement in its decision making. For example, this year's winter holiday movie, "Every Which Way But Loose," was chosen by the students, and the finalists of the Homecoming Court were chosen by the members of the Senior Class.

The members of Student Government have had an extremely productive year and view 1980-81 as a time of hard work and accomplishment.

"Catherine, I think I forgot my lollies!"

John R. Essig

After strenously working an hour and a half everyday after school for two weeks to learn a routine with steps you could have sworn were humanly impossible, there comes the day of Confederette tryouts. With quivering muscles and anticipation, the routine you thought you'd never learn in time had to be performed. Two at a time you march in and stand at attention until the music, "Crazy Little Thing Called Love" begins to play. You begin performing the routine to the best of your ability, smiling all the time and hoping to not make many mistakes. When the routine is finished, you stand at attention, still smiling, while ten judges look at you and wildly scribble on your score sheets. Then they thank you and dismiss you. Whew!! It's over! Now the long wait to find out if you made it.

This year the Confederette Squad, with its twenty members, was led by Captain Beth Marra. During football season, Beth was assisted by Co-Captains, April Gawen and Lisa Rohrbaugh.

Fourteen members of the squad went to a drill team camp this summer for four days. Kris Fadness and April Gawen were among the ten runners-up for Miss Virginia in the All American Drill Team. In March, they went to Ohio to be in the All American Drill Team Pageant.

The squad performed at all home football games and marched in the Annual Homecoming Parade. Also, the Confederettes, along with the Band, competed at the Robinson Marching Spectacular.

During basketball season, the Confederettes performed at all homes games. The Co-Captains for this season were Kim Suthard and Lynn White. The squad participated in a Christmas assembly and in a parade which was sponsored by Fairfax City. The Confederettes were also asked to perform at George Mason's home basketball games.

Majorettes, Mendy Mallow, Lea Ann Mooney, and Lynn Leonard practice before their first home football game.

Although the Majorette Squad has diminished to only three members, these three work hard to please their audiences. The threee survivors are Lea Ann Mooney, Mendy Mallow, and Lynn Leonard, all of whom have been twirling since their elementary school years.

The Majorettes appeared in sparkling new uniforms this year, and incorporated rifles in their act. In addition to the new look, the Majorettes wanted to appeal to the audience by twirling to popular songs such as "I'm Alright" and "In America."

A lot of hard practicing took place during football season so that they could perform successfully at each home game and pep rally. Practice continued for appearances at some of the basketball games, and for the band trip in the Spring.

The two Senior twirlers, Mendy and Lea Ann "are looking forward to returning next year to see the first solo twirler in FHS history, Lynn Leonard.

"Be there . . . positive!" was the motto of this year's Flag Corps. Under the direction of Ms. Staats, they proved to be one of the most hard-working and dedicated organizations this school boasts.

Following a week-long flag clinic at the beginning of the summer, the seventeen girls met once a week throughout the summer. Captain Lisa Picciano and Co-Captains Laura Forester and Denise McGiffin did such a tremendous job organizing the group that by the time marching season began, the Flags had already prepared most of their routines.

There were several changes from the previous year. This year, Ms. Staats sponsored both the Flags and the Confederettes. The two groups worked closely together, often helping each other with routines. The routines were done to "Bolero," "One," and "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue." With the arrival of new uniforms, a fresh, lively look was achieved. More preparation, increased precision, and better skills all contributed towards making this, perhaps, the Flag Corps' best year.

"There is a mandatory Pep Club meeting today after school in room . . ." When this is heard by members of the Pep Club, they know it is another day to sell badges and make banners. At 2:15 pm, long banners are laid out and hundreds of cans of paint are scattered about the floor. When everyone is ready, it's "sit down and work time." Most banners have to be completed in two meetings.

When the first away football game is scheduled, so is the first pep bus. The Pep Club organizes a bus that guarantees a "peppy" ride. The Club sells the tickets, gets people on the bus, and the Cheerleaders cheer all the way to the game.

During basketball season, a traditional spirit week is held. The 1981 spirit week days featured various dress-up days and the traditional "Peppy and Johnny Court."

The Pep Club offers fun to any interested person. It could really use some participation from the male population because Pep Club has had female members only. So c'mon, men! Show us your spirit!

REBEL FOOTBALL COACHING STAFF

Playing football for Fairfax High School may ultimately be one of the most meaningful experiences in my life. It has helped me in many ways to grow up to be a young man. Much of the reason for this growth has been my association with Coach Ward. As the elected captain of the team I feel that I speak not only for myself, but also for the other members of the team.

Coach Ward has taught us to strive to always do our very best. When we lost, we lost in the style that Coach Ward taught us-good sportsmanship and still proud. When we won, we won with dignity and respect for our opponents. Coach Ward had a unique way of telling us to have faith and pride, no matter what the circumstances of the game were.

In the speech Coach Ward made at our Sports Banquet, he stressed to be a good athlete is to be a good student, a good son and a respectable community member. He stressed primarily the students' grades. He said that school work came first and then football. He statef that everyone needs a good education for the future.

Our team, the football program, and I have grown in stature because of the high ideals our coach has instilled in his players. He's made me a better competitor — perhaps a better man.

Defense Played Tough

The Rebel football season ended on a sour note as the Varsity lost to Woodson. On the offensive side, the Revels were as they have been all year — inconsistent. Sporadic front line action and inexperience at quarterback forced them to rely mainly on their defense.

There were bright spots on the team. Jeff Hamilton and Roger Mello, who both made District first team, are the most promising prospects the team has for the next year. Hamilton, who broke many tackles for long gains, made the opposition wary to face them. Having Mello, Hamilton, and Danny O'Connell returning, the Rebel offense for next year should be impressive.

Holding the opposition to minimal scores and keeping the game alvie when it should have been over, the defense had a tremendous year. Led by Captain Jim Rice, District first team and Potomac District Player of the Year, the defense played tough, often surprising the opposition with their poise and confidence.

Forcing the other team to give up the ball, always hitting their hardest until the final seconds ticked off the clock won Pete Elias and Mike Boehm District first team and Regional first team berths. Elias also received the well deserved honor of a position on the All Metro first team defensive unit.

During homecoming, the Rebels routed the Stuart Raiders 41 to 14. Getting off to a slow start and finishing the half with a mere 7 to 6 lead, the Rebels erupted for 34 points in the second half. Blowing out the Stuart front line, the offense allowed Jeff Hamilton and Freshman Tommy Howard to break loose for two touchdowns each. Not wanting to be outdone by the offense, Dean Newcombe intercepted three Raider passes and returned two for touchdowns.

Defense Bright Spot in Dismal J. V. Season

The Junior Varsity football team finished the 1980 season with a disappointing 0-5-1 record. The long, hard practices failed to pay off as the team nevr managed to play four quarters of consistent football. A tie against a tough Falls Church team appeared to be the turning of the Rebel's fortunes. A layoff the following week, though, due to a norfeit by Jeb Stuart could possibly have been detrimental as the team lost its remaining two games.

The lack of a game breaker on offense could have been the problem, as th team relied on all three running backs to pick up the yardage. The halfbacks, George Omilan and James Bayse, provided speed to the outside, and freshman, Dewey Crumbaugh, got the yards needed inside. Quarterback Leon Bayse directed the offense, and Scott Lepage was often the target of the Rebel aerial assault. The offense proved explosive at times by continuously driving downfield, but there were always several setbacks. When the offense would move into the opponent's territory, it would be plagued with penalties or other breakdowns in concentration.

The defense was the key that kept the Rebels in every game this season. It never let a contest get out of hand, and it played with great intensity throughout each game. Holding down the defensived line were Andy Shapleigh and Karl Gastrock. Mike Brown and sure-tackling John Mazzanoble manned the line-backing core, while Wilbert Sowell and Mark Harmon made the secondary a hard hitting one. The desire and aggressiveness of this group left the outcome of many of the games undecided until the final seconds ticked off the clock.

Even those who did not get to play full time gave 100 percent effort when called upon. The specialty teams gave the offense good field position or pinned the opposition deep in their own territory. Also aiding the team were standouts David Yohe and Mike Devers whose contributions were missed when they were moved to the Varsity. Although the record was unimpressive, the character and spirit shown by each individual will greatly aid the future varsity teams.

Freshman Season Record 4-1-1

Mike Essig

Jefferson tacklers take Hoby Patrick down after a short gain.

This year's Fairfax Freshman football team finished the year 4-1-1, including four consecutive wins at the beginning of the season. In those four games, the Rebels scored a spectacular 105 points. The defense was also excellent, fighting for two shutouts during the season. All the success is mainly attributed to the hard, usually grueling, work done in the practices. Led by coaches Bud Wood and Jim Moeller, the inspired Freshman team was certainly ready for the season.

The outstanding offensive team was led by halfback Tommy Howard, who scored eleven touchdowns. Also turning in superb performances were halfback Shane Taylor, and anchoring the line, Drew Burford and Scott Cummings.

The tough, hard hitting defense supplied the motivation for the Rebels. Led by Patrick Henry on the line and Robbie Bleiberg, the defense forced many turnovers which often resulted in Fairfax scores. Highlights for the defense included two fumble returns for touchdowns by Robbie Bleiberg and Eric Whitten.

Although the team had a winning season, there were a few difficulties. The first problem was the departure of star runningback, Tommy Howard in mid-season. Also, a team letdown at the end of the schedule helped cause the only loss of the season.

Tommy Howard, after performing spectacularly with the freshman team, was moved to the Varsity where he successfully gained a total of 261 yards in three games.

THREE REBELS

In the sports sector of school there is always that drive to be number one, to be the best; although the football team did not quite make number one, three of its Seniors tried their best to make it number one and almost succeeded! These three fine young men are #72 Middle Linebacker Mike Boehm, #80 Defensive End Pete Elias, and #50 Middle Linebacker and Team Captain Jim Rice. Each of these outstanding players worked extremely hard all year and that work did indeed pay off.

Mike Boehm was awarded the Outstanding Lineman Award and his record clearly shows why. He made 22 unassisted tackles, 63 assists, 6 quarterback sacks, 54 initial hits, 3 goal line stands, 1 pass interferance, caused 2 fumbles, recovered 1 fumble, blocked 6 passes, threw the ball carrier for a loss of 5 times, and was a Rebel Club Member 47 times. Because of this excellent record, Mike earned the right to play first team in the All-Regional, and All-Suburban Games and second team in the All-Metropolitan game. In addition to all of this, he has obtained a football scholarship to James Madison. Mike is but one of the many talented players at F.H.S.

Another Outstanding Lineman Award winner is Pete Elias. Like Mike, Pete has a remarkable record. He made 26 unassisted tackles, 94 assists, 5 quarterback sacks, 63 initial hits, 3 goal line stands, caused 2 fumbles, recovered 2 fumbles, blocked 6 passes, blocked 2 field goals and was a 38 time member of the Rebel Club. In addition to an outstanding record, Pete went to All-District, All-Regional, All-Metropolitain, and All-State on first team; and will play in the East-West All Star Game at Blacksburg in July. As well as these honors, Pete has obtained a football scholarship to Shepard College where he plans to continue developing his skill in football.

Finally, the team captain, Jim Rice was also honored with the Outstanding Back Award. His record, like Mike and Pete, is fantastic. Jim made 26 unassisted tackles, 94 assists, 4 quarterback sacks, 113 initial hits, 3 goal line stands, caused 5 fumbles, recovered 2 fumbles, blocked 5 passes, threw the ball carrier for a loss 2 times, and earned Rebel Club Membership 35 times. As a linebacker, Jim played in the first team All-District, and All-Suburban games; and second team in the All-Metropolitain game. Jim also plans to go to Shepard College on a Football Scholarship.

Varsity, They Made It to the Top

The winning season by the Varsity Hockey Team at Fairfax provides a story in success! Coach Starr Downing, who was one of the best players on the Virginia Tech. field, led the team through strenuous practices and as a result, the team developed as a unit. After losing the first two games, the Varsity did not lose again during the regular season play. The team developed perfect teamwork, defeating any and all scheduled opponents, including a mid-season win over the number one ranked Annandale Atoms. The Rebels advanced to the Regionals where they lost a close contest to T.C. Williams. The team represented Fairfax High School admirably, and was a credit to our school's interscholastic sports program.

Tim Ducharme

Goalie, Kelly Williams, tends the cage.

For many on the Junior Varsity, hockey proved to be a new and challenging sport. Coach Harris, a Fairfax alumna, played the game here and at West Virginia University. She had the difficult task of building a team with most of the players new to the game. As one player said, "She even had to teach us the rules." Although the team was inexperienced, at times they were a formidable force.

Memorable moments included victories over Oakton and Falls Church. Games in which the Rebels were defeated were all very close, being lost by only one or two goals. The highlight of the season was the exciting victory over the Jefferson Cavaliers.

Coach Harris discovered an abundance of talent on the team. Two players, Barb Tracy and Theresa MacDonald, accompanied the Varsity to the Regionals.

This Year's Varsity Basketball Team was comprised of members who possessed strong individual talents. Yet, as a team, they were unable to coordinate their efforts. Bob Bailey, Brian Ball, and Richard Frakes are but a few who have demonstrated their potential with many outstanding plays. The team's record, however, has been stigmatized by losses resulting from bad passes and careless fouls.

The Senior players were Brian Ball, Richard Frakes, Lee Snead, and Rick Schuller. The Juniors, Bob Bailey, Tom Hudson, Gary Jones, Joe Keller, Michael Laing, Guy Messier, Brian Young, and the only Sophomore, Eric Richter, will hold the key to next year's basketball fortunes.

The J.V. Basketball finished the season with two District wins and a 7-9 record. Coached by Mr. Ed Tabish, the Rebels played six games that were decided by two, or less, points. This included three games in a row that were won or lost by a single point.

After two losses to Woodson and Herndon, the J. V.'s rebounded with a four game winning streak that included a decisive 70-42 win over Ft. Hunt. Center Lee Jones contributed 16 points to the rout of the Federals. During another game in that streak, Jay O'Quinn scored a season high 25 points against Lee. But then, a four game slump dropped the Rebel's record to 4-6. At this point, one of the team's leading scorers, Wilbert Sowell was moved to the Varsity. The last six games were all close, with Fairfax winning three to finish the season at 7-9.

Freshmen Best Under Pressure

With the help of three good efforts in overtime periods, the Freshman Basketball Team finished with a 4-6 record. The Rebels played their best when the pressure was on. In three overtime games, Coach Laing's charges were victorious.

Led by forward Shane Taylor and 6'-4'' center Bill Dorn, the offense averaged almost 60 points per game. Taylor paced the team with 102 points followed by Dorn's 100. Dorn also had 89 rebounds and an astonishing 34 blocked shots. Sharpshooter John Nicodemus led in assists and steals and was the most consistent outside shooter. Mark MacDonald and Keith Rice added ball handling and shooting to the guards. Scott Campbell and Drew Burford combined with Taylor provided a powerful attack forward. Campbell's rebounding, 64 for the year, complimented Burford's 81 points. Coming off the bench at guard, the quickness of Billy Brown and the shooting of Bill McRaney, who led in free throw percentage, added greatly to the team's depth. The backups on the front line, Tom Rose, Hans Chang, and Chuck Shewbridge were ready when needed.

The season was mostly up and down. After a close defeat at Wakefield, the Rebels won their first game of the year against Annandale. Then, a loss at the hands of tough Jefferson, and two extra period wins put the Freshman record at a promising 3-2. However, a four game losing streak dropped the Rebels to 3-6. Another exciting victory over Stuart allowed them to finish on a high note and a 4-6 final record.

It was a very emotional season and, with added experience, the Freshmen should become a good J. V. Team next year.

What happened?

The Fairfax High School Dive Team competes in a sport that has received little recognition. The Team, consisting of eight members was organized in 1979. It practices at least two days each week at the Wakefield Park Recreational Center. Members learn from each other during practices since they are without a coach. The Dive Team Members hope that, during the next school year, the good exercise and great fun realized from this sport will attract many new members.

Thin-Clads Determined to Win

The track Team started the year coachless. Mr. Wilson and Mr. Okyen, both former high school track men, suddenly appeared on the scene and took over coaching. As the weather got cold, the team was forced to stay inside and workout in the fieldhouse. This didn't daunt their determination to win, as the team came out of the season with six victories to three losses, placed third in the District, and broke the triple jump record.

Field events were led by Roger Bennett, Rick Loucks, Paul Perazzoli, and John Baughmann. Brian Ball led in the 600 while Mike Klisch and Fred Ingham cleaned up the 300.

Girls Post 4-0 Record

The Girl's Track Team coached by Ms. Peggy Aderton won their opening meet against Jefferson, their first win in two years. They did not stop there, however, as they defeated Jefferson once more before traveling to TJ Center for a quad meet with Jefferson, Chantilly, and Wakefield. After the girls watched the other schools fade into the backstretch, they came back to Fairfax and nearly shut out Wakefield the following week. Their 4-0 record was made possible by great performances such as the undefeated record of Shannon Czina in the Hurdles and of Karen Beard, Leslie Bubon, and Shannon Czina in the 900 yard relay.

"And then he said ..."

Going to different schools every Thursday night and cheering for our team isn't all there is to cheerleading. There is also work, long practices, learning new cheers, and following the rules and regulations for cheerleaders. Being able to support our wrestlers and the school is our reward. The Fairfax Cheerleaders, with our sponsor, Ms. Sue Murray, organize the pep rallies to raise school spirit. We are proud of our teams victories, but win or lose we always wear a smile.

— Stacy Marbert

Football Cheerleaders kick A big One!

Ever since the 7th Grade, I've done by best to promote school spirit. Now that I've arrived at FHS, being a cheerleader has given me the perfect opportunity to support our football team.

I realize, now, that cheerleading is more than just yelling, cheering, and jumping. It's also baking for the team, last minute meetings, and hours of practice at school and at home. There are many responsibilities in being a cheerleader, but the excitement and fun is well worth the time.

Try-outs are horrid, no two ways about it. For months you anticipate that one day, thinking of all the awful things that could go wrong, and probably will. You get the jitters, you're queasy, you're sore all over, and you begin to wonder if cheerleading is worth all the practice and sore muscles. In the end, you realize that the effort was very much worth it.

For me, the scariest part was opening the door to the wrestling room (where try-outs were held). The rest of it went by pretty quickly. I just ran in, made a series of mistakes, and fell out of the door.

With only four experienced Varsity players returning, the 1980-81 Girl's Varsity Basketball Team has done suprisingly well fo far this season. Starting the year with three disappointing losses, the Rebel girls quickly regained their confidence in time to win their next three games. The starting line-up for the team has both the height needed for rebounding and the speed for fast breaks. In addition, the Rebels have a strong bench, consisting mainly of Juniors which Coach Ferguson has used effectively. This also the first year in Fairfax High School history in which a girl's basketball team has been rated in the top ten teams in the region.

The Girl's J. V. Basketball season started off as a real drag with an unfortunate and unforgettable 49-11 loss to Woodson. Even more unfortunate were the four more losses in a row to follow. All the while the mighty Rebels were just working, struggling, and improving, just waiting for the district games to begin. Low and behold "M.J.'s Kids" were ready. We blasted through the remainder of the season to finish with an 8-2 second place district record with losses only to Wakefield. This was the second best 1980-81 Fairfax winter sports team record. With the talent and enthusiasm of this team, the Northern Region better be ready for our girl's basketball teams for several years to come.

"Stretch out, you are not warmed up! Point your toes! Haven't you got any courage? There . . . that's better!" Gymnastics isn't always fun during practice, but it's fun when you get that high score in a meet.

Through daily work-outs, including weekends, this year's team proved to be prepared and dedicated. Particularly so was Nancy Brooker, who placed in all the meets. In the District Meet she placed fourth on the vault, fifth on the beam, and eighth on floor routine. Nancy was the only FHS Gymnast to advance to the Regionals. "While Nancy Brooker's scores were high," said Coach Franks, "There are two more gymnasts heading towards a good future in their favorite sport. They are Lisa Thrash, a Sophomore, and Amy Whitehead, a Freshman."

Winning Varsity Season Surprise to All Except Coaches

The Varsity Wrestling Team started with some doubt about having a winning season. Other teams, as well, expected little competition from us because two-thirds of our Varsity was on last year's J. V. Team. The keys to our success were hard work and our coaches, Mr. Gerry Piddington, Mr. Randy Scott, and Mr. Mitch Sutterfield, who helped everyone overcome weakness and capitalize on strengths.

The team stunned the opposition by winning the first two matches, including one over Woodson, last year's District Champion. After placing second to Robinson's defending State Championship Team in the Bishop Ireton Christmas Tournament, the Washington Star ranked the Rebles eighth in the Metro Area. When the Distric Meet rolled around, seven out of twelve Varsity Wrestlers made the finals. Although only Charlie Christinger and Roger Mello won out of the seven Fairfax finalists, the team qualified ten out of twelve for the Regional tournament and finished second to powerful State runner-up, Falls Church.

At the Regionals, Brian Mason, the veteran 98 pounder stormed through the tournament, capturing Fairfax's first regional crown in five years. Unlimited wrestler Roger Mello lost only to the regional champion, taking third place honors.

At the State Tournment, both wrestlers won medals; Mason closed out a brilliant 52-16 career by taking fifth, and Roger Mello finished third in the State as a Junior, ending a 22-2 season with promise for the future.

Overall, the Varsity Wrestling Team enjoyed a winning 8-2 season. They were eighth in the Metro Area, second in the Bishop Ireton Tournment, runner-up in the Potomac District; and thirteenth in the State of Virginia.

J. V. Tough and Determined

Toughness and determination were the keys to the J. V.'s impressive 7-3 record. The team was coached by Mr. Piddington and led by Captains Robin Nicholas and Steve Thuot.

Robin was outstanding as he finished an undefeated season by taking first place in the District Tournament at 105 lbs. Also doing well in the District were Wayne Lee (138 lbs.) and Andy Shapleigh (unlimited), who pinned one opponent in ten seconds. Both finished second in the tournament. Some of the other talented members were Terry McGiffin, Leon Bayse, Victor Tiernan, Maroon Ohanian, Mark Harmon, Joe Blesse, and David Yohe. Alan Harmon and Bobby Dean combined to give the 98 lb. class an 8-2 record.

Freshmen Finish 6-2

Coached by Mr. Mitch Sutterfield, the Freshmen wrestlers captured another winning season. The team practiced six times each week with the J. V. and Varsity squads.

Standouts on the team were Steve Tempesco (105 lbs.), who took fourth in the Freshmen/J.V. Tournament, Rob Bleiberg (167 libs.), and Johnny Johnson (112 lbs.). Bleiberg and Johnson finished the season undefeated and Bleiberg placed second in the tournament. Other outstanding wrestlers who showed promise were Jon Simione, T.J. McCorry, Matt Dowd, Grady Fox, Jim Ashooh, and Peter Parsons. Should these wrestlers stay with the sport and continue to develop their abilities, the futurs looks bright for Rebel wrestling.

Coach Moeller, "Mr. FHS Athletics," Retires

After thirty years of coaching, 25 of which have been here at FHS, Coach James Moeller is retiring. Because of this decision, the baseball field was named in his honor on the first of May.

Mr. Moeller went to school at the old Fairfax High from 1941 to 1944, and excelled in all sports, lettering in each sport. In fact, the night before entering the service, he won the South Atlantic boxing championship!

It was hard for the coach to learn how far to go when disciplining the kids he taught. His Marine Corps training and the Iwo Jima landing made him tough (he still is today) and he expected the boys to be the same. However, he has managed to create an aura that demands respect and admiration from those with whom he comes in contact. Says Mr. Stalnaker, "He is the type of teacher that the kids, not just the athletes, come back year after year to see."[1]

To list the titles that Coach Moeller has been awarded would take too much room in this article, but he has become one of the best-known and respected men in the Fairfax area. He has won over 400 games in high school and in the Valley League, where he coaches college-age baseball players.

Coach Moeller has a lot to say about the people and students that he has known over the years. He doesn't mention any particular experience as most memorable, but does say that he has enjoyed "my association with so many fine young people. The results of the friendships I have enjoyed will always be with me."[2]

Thanks for the Past . . . Good Luck in Your Future!

A thirty year career in public education draws to a close with the retirement of our Principal, Mr. Clarence Drayer. When he came to Fairfax High School in 1977, his goal was, "To foster an atmosphere that is productive, where people are secure enough to accept direction and still feel free enough to progress."

Mr. Drayer's career spans fifteen years in the Arlington County Schools and fifteen years in the Fairfax County System. He has served as an English and Social Studies Teacher and Assistant Principal at the intermediate level, as a High School Assistant Principal, and as the Principal of Madison and Fairfax High Schools. Mr. Drayer has strongly supported school activities and was a football coach for eleven years.

Our Principal sees FHS as unique. "The school reflects the community, and the Fairfax City community has maintained values that have been lost in the larger community." With regard to the current state of public education, Mr. Drayer is concerned that the focus has drifted away from the school. "Many decisions that were formerly made at the local level are now heavily influenced by a power structure that is not always aware of the unique problems experienced by each individual school."

Mr. Drayer plans to keep active, but hopes to have more time for projects such as the beach cottage he is remodeling, and for pursuit of a favorite avocation: the study of history through reading and by visiting historic sites.

Fairfax Remembers Mr. Reed

Steve Hocken

Mr. Reed, as we remember.

Whether in his classes, or not, students remember Mr. Reed as someone who cared about them. A teacher remarked, "Mr. Reed was always a fine gentleman."

In 1961, Commander James W. Reed, U.S. Navy, retired to continue his education that had begun at Purdue University prior to World War II. As a Navy Line Officer, he was on duty at Pearl Harbor on December 7th, 1941. He served on a variety of ships during both the Second World War and the Korean conflict, and became a commander of Mine Layers. Mr. Reed loved the sea, but found the most rewarding part of naval service to be the opportunity to work with young people. He brought together his interest in young people, and his interest in the science of engineering, when he reported for work at Fairfax High School following graduation from the University of Maryland in 1962. For seventeen years, Mr. Reed taught drafting and mathematics at FHS.

Naval Officer, Educator, and Family Man, Mr. Reed is remembered by his wife, Betty, two daughters and four grandchildren, his shipmates, and a lot of FHS students and staff that are richer for their association with this fine gentleman.

STORM

With bow to sea and fair into the gale,
Set she a steady course through waves of might,
Refreshing taste of cheese but flavor stale,
All see how stout the ship and great the fight.
How she does charge the rage in Neptune's jaws
And, gird with Atlas strength, the ocean part,
She turns unwelcome boarder to tempest halls.
Confused, new breath is caught at gentled heart.
The dim horizon's searched for harbor lee,
Course set before the storm to ease the plight.
Observe: Control decreased in following sea,
Crow's nest from roll and pitch is slow to right.
The storm is past and haven promised near.
Ahead! At last, a light! God's sunshine clear.

A landslide vote was recorded in the selection of the 1980-81 "Lord and Lady Fairfax."

La Mont Studios

By the end of Spirit Week, I figured I'd paid some heavy dues. On Tuesday, I had swaddled myself in yellow vestments, the better to dispense Guru enlightenment — Maharishi Sutterfield Yogi. The next day, I had limped through the halls in gray pin stripes, looking like a Wall Street troglodyte. On Thursday . . . well; have you ever tried to coordinate yellow, green, red and blue? I was more the jester than the Prince.

All unaware was I of the underground movement, launched by a Red-bent hellbroth of radical subversives and anarchists, a vile conspiracy of innocent-seeming student types, to install, invest, and transmogrify me forever as Lord Fairfax, 1981. So quick and efficient was the coup that I didn't even learn of my election until Sunday night, when my royal consort, La Larsen, hailed me via telephone.

We started our reign Monday. Thank you, all my subjects, especially those who voted for me!

— Mr. Sutterfield

Overwhelming Vote Considered A Mandate

La Mont Studios

Lord Fairfax, Mr. Mitch Sutterfield, and Lady Fairfax, Ms. Marilyn Larsen.

It had been a rotten, rainy weekend. My lawn looked like Charlie Daniels' Wooley Swamp, my dog bit the best jogger on the block, and my electroencephalogram results were "nebulous and erratic." The panacea for the get-up-and-go-that-got-up-and-went? — Spirit Week.

Tacky Day arrived, and I donned the carefully chosen wardrobe fit for the best of 'em on 14th Street. My attempts to tiptoe stealthily across the driveway were foiled by the catcalls and whistles from a carpool of government employees who happened to pass by as I was adjusting the rhinestone seams of my purple hose. Things got worse. By the end of the day my seams split, I shocked two parents at a conference, and I found a care package waiting for me at my front door. The card read: "We're sorry you're having financial problems — hope this will help." Could 60's Day be any worse?

It was. I thought Hendrix would have been proud of my fashion recall from the Woodstock days, but everyone thought I was making a pitch for the Wounded Knee Fund. I went to my Guru for advice and found, instead, a note explaining the transcendental value of wrestling.

Dress-up-Day was a complete fiasco. The kids told me I had dressed every which way but up. Sob. Sniff Sigh.

Class Colors Day gave me an opportunity for a rainbow image. Unfortunately, I spent the day fighting off greedy throngs of Juniors who thought I had hidden a pot of gold under each armpit. Blarney.

Blue and Gray Day accomplished only one thing . . . the color combinations enhanced my varicose veins and highlighted the silver streaks in my hair. "Why do I punish myself like this?" I thought.

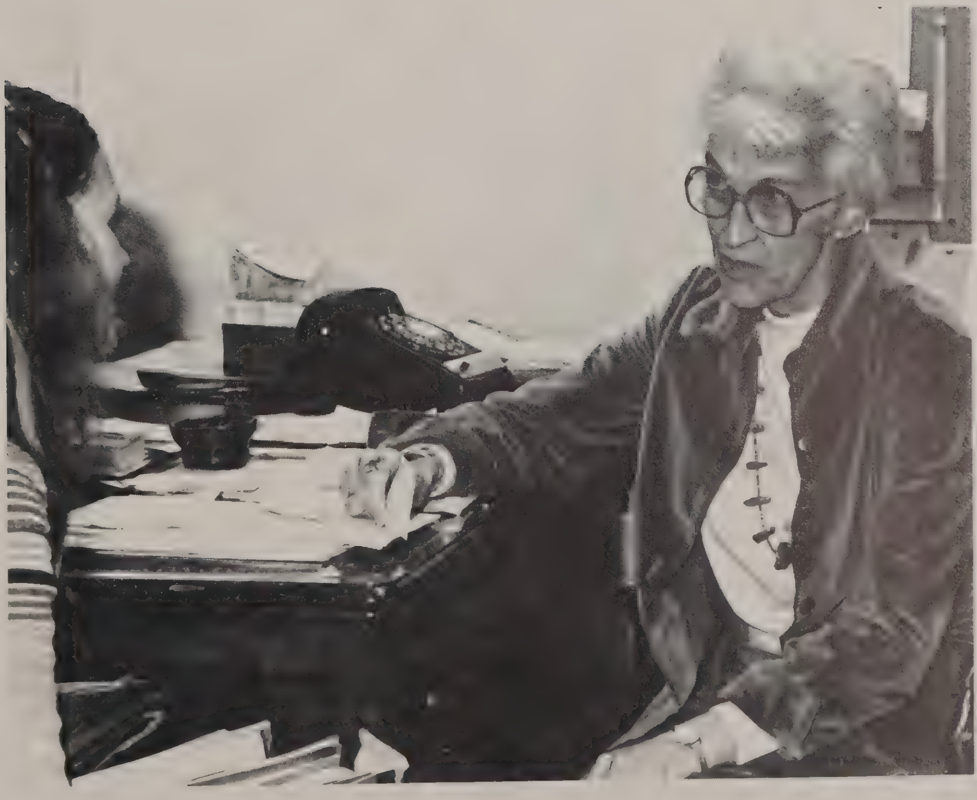
Aha! Blue and White Night! I raced to the gym where I was recruited as a replacement for Stewart on the bass, and I dropped my drumsticks during the crucial "roll" of the game. Suddenly, the announcer said ". . . and Lady Fairfax is . . . ." At that point my purse fell between the bleachers with a resounding splat. When I came up for air, the kids were cheering. "ME?" It figured I'd miss the warmest moment of Spirit Week; but for once in my life, I was speechless.

Head Wally Puts Down His Baton

La Mont Studios

Mr. Matthias (yes, Matthias) Hynes came to FHS in 1964 as an Assistant Band Director. He has been a member of the illustrious Navy Band and appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show. Over the years, "Uncle Matt" has instilled a sense of respect and love in his students. He has tirelessly taught them after school, given them a sense of freedom, yet has managed to keep the band well organized. One of his famous sayings, "If you want to practice, only you can practice. I can't do it for you!" shows how much he cares for his students and their work. The reason we're telling you this is that Mr. Hynes will retire this June, after seventeen years of broken batons. What will he do with his new found freedom? Board his boat and sail around the world, of course!

Ms. Walker Gives Up the Watch



D. Chris Pflieger

Ms. Maezene Walker has been counseling at FHS for 23 years and enjoyed every minute, but has decided that now's the time to call it quits. She wants to pursue other veins of entertainment, like: eating, reading, knitting, "beaching," and just being with people. Ms. Walker commented, "There is a stack of books by my bedside that I just haven't had time to read. I don't know where all the years have gone!" She claims that come September, 1981, she'll be in her Nags Head cottage, and will give up wearing a watch.

The Auditors Are Coming!!!

The year began for the faculty and staff with an air of foreboding. It was our turn to be "audited." Not in the usual sense of the word "audit," but we were scheduled to be examined by the Fairfax County Public Schools' Program Audit.

Program Audit, conducted under the direction of the Area Superintendent, brings a team of specialists, administrators, and selected teachers into the school for an in-depth look at most aspects of school operations. The audit team's primary focus is to evaluate how well the school is meeting the objectives of the Fairfax County Program of Studies for English, Social Studies, Mathematics, and Science. Other aspects receiving careful scrutiny included the human relations climate, adequacy and condition of facilities and materials, and administrative procedures.

During preliminary planning meetings with the audit team, much of the sense of foreboding disappeared as the teachers realized that the audit does not evaluate, or even note, individual teacher performance. Audit preliminaries included an opinion survey that was administered and evaluated by the Area IV Human Relations Specialists. Those surveyed included the Junior Class and their parents as well as the entire faculty.

The auditors observed classes and school operations every day for one week during October. Teachers were generally pleased with the friendly and professional conduct of the team. Students quickly accepted the auditors and their presence did not appear to disrupt the normal classroom routine.

The audit team met with the faculty on the Monday following audit week and presented their report which included both commendations and recommendations for improvement. Following review of the team report by Mr. Drayer and the Area IV Superintendent, the faculty discovered that the real work associated with Program Audit is the "follow-up phase." Follow-up is a long term process of planning and implementing programs and procedures to make the recommended improvements.

Was Program Audit worth the effort? Will an excellent school be even better after follow-up? The reactions of faculty members and students to these questions were quite varied. Possibly we will know in three years when Fairfax may again be visited by Program Audit.

Pride in Their School

John Essig

The day crew, Ms. Paulette Carter, Mr. Pete Carter, and Mr. Allen Mulkey, relax at the end of one of their always busy work days.

Just because the school day ends at two o'clock doesn't mean that the work is done. The Custodial Staff of Fairfax High School takes great pride in our building, and working late hours to make our environment pleasant is not unusual to them.

Sweeping and mopping is but a small part of a custodian's job. Other duties in which they are involved include school security, maintenance, assisting in the cafeteria during the lunch shifts, and having to prepare the building for all the civic activities taking place on the premises. Incidentally, Fairfax High is the most used building in the County School System.

When asked what the biggest student caused problems were in maintaining the school's appearance, Maintenance Manager, Pete Carter says, "The students of Fairfax are the best I've ever encountered. Aside from painting on the lockers and damage to ceiling tiles, the school is in good shape." Even so, the County still spends about $10,000 per year for repairs with money that could be put to better use.

The students owe much to the custodians and need to show their appreciation.

John Essig

Mr. Hubert Tharpe, of the evening crew, bringing in new cafeteria chairs.

"Nickel Lady" Is One In A Million

John Essig

The "Nickel Lady," Ms. Paulette Carter, Appearing unusually solemn.

When you buy lunch in the cafeteria, a five cent tray deposit is included in the price. This practice created yet another in the myriad of tasks performed by custodians, and caused the most popular custodian to acquire an unusual nickname. The "Nickel Lady," Ms. Paulette Carter, is well known at Fairfax for her smile and friendly helpful manner. During both lunch shifts she is busy handing out nickels for returned trays, but never too busy to share a good word with her many friends among the students and teachers.

Ms. Carter has been at Fairfax for seven years and was previously a custodian at Greenbrier East School. The "Nickel Lady" appears to like Fairfax High and says, "I am used to this place."

Collecting and returning trays is very profitable for some students. Ms. Carter recalls two students who each had saved $100 before Christmas from collecting trays, and that there are probably some making all spending money in this way.

Jeff Campbell

Mr. Lewis Johnson — Ms. Paulette Carter — Mr. Allen Mulkey.

Jeff Campbell

The seemingly endless paper work takes much of Mr. William Carter's time.

The Cafeteria Staff Really Gets Cookin

Jeff Campbell

This sure makes me hungry!

John R. Essig

"Tray washing is fun?" asks Ms. Moore.

Milk
SHAKE .60
John R. Essig

"Fattening but good," Ms. Verner said.

John R. Essig

Ms. Stamper is glad that she took math.

John R. Essig

This is confusing.

The Fairfax High School Cafeteria service provides us with an inexpensive, nutritional meal everyday. The crew of fifteen, led by head manager Grapel Verner, does everything from cooking french fries and sandwiches to washing trays and dishes. Other jobs performed are the making of milkshakes, running of the Snack and Salad Bars, and the brain twisting job of cashiering. This is an independently run service which we are truly lucky to have.

All of the food prepared must follow a nationwide program, where each student receives his lunch with the minimum requirements of meats, vegetables, fruit, bread, and milk. That is the reason why you may not enjoy the entire lunch.

All members like working at Fairfax High, especially with students who are helpful, courteous, and understanding. The staff does wish, however, that some of us would mature a little and quit the squirting of milk, the stealing of food, and the cutting in line. "That's not high school behavior." stated Mrs. Verner.

Our school also satellites food to nearby Layton Hall and John C. Wood Elementary Schools.

All of the food is greatly appreciated by all of the students and will be in years to come.

Constitution Avenue the day the ex-hostages came to Washington, D. C.

When my stepfather, Malcolm Kalp, was first taken hostage on November 4, 1979, I was very upset. At the time, I was living in Massachusetts with my legal father and didn't tell anyone about the crisis until the end of December.

As the months passed by, I became concerned about my mother's well-being. During the summer of 1980, I moved to Virginia to be with her and help her out. "No Greater Love," an organization devoted to easing the tensions and frustrations of hostage families, started taking us out to movies, musicals, and to meet famous movie stars.

We hadn't heard from my stepfather for eight months and we didn't know what was happening to him. There were times when a release was in sight. Everyone's spirits were high, only to be shot down when we found out that it was just Iranian propaganda.

When the "hostages" were finally released, I couldn't believe it was true! The next morning my stepfather called from Germany and told us how badly the Iranians had treated him. I was very upset and angry with the Iranians because of the barbaric way they had acted toward our people.

When Malcolm Kalp came home, the family went to West Point, New York, to rest for a few days. We came back to D. C., met President Reagan, and stayed at the Crystal City Marriott Hotel. Two days later we went home to start a normal life again.

"A New Beginning"

Delma Studios, Inc.

The new First Family is greeted by the people of Washington.

Ronald Reagan, our 40th President, appears to be the most non-conformist leader we've had in some time. Besides being one of the oldest men to hold the office, President Reagan is also one of the most energetic. He makes you tired just watching him fly to California to "ride horses and chop wood" on the ranch, then to the "barber's," then racing back home to "gain control of the economy." Will the honeymoon never end? We will know in time; meanwhile, care for a jellybean?

Ronald and Nancy Reagan.

Rookie Yearbook Sponsor Says . . .
Many Thanks to the Involved!

Many thanks to the students that interrupted busy schedules to write copy for the Sampler. Particularly helpful were the many contributions of Miriam Clark, Robin Donaldson, Anne Keitt, David Gano, Mark Harmon, Roger Schaeffer, and Lisa Whitten.

As the "rookie" sponsor, I would not have survived "yearbooking" if it had not been for the support of Mr. Clarence Drayer and the help given so generously by the Business, English, and Physical Education Departments. A special thanks is in order to Ms. Pat Staats who helped many students write sports copy. During the dark days of October and November, when I was trying to "learn how to spell yearbook," Mr. Rex Foley (Representing the Matrix Publisher: Josten's American Yearbook Company) came to the rescue. He provided a wealth of manuals on "yearbooking" and expended a lot of effort helping the "rookie" understand what had to be done. I also wish to thank Mr. Jim Ellis (Representing the Sampler Publisher: Hunter Publishing Company) for his help, particularly when a local photo processing company blew most of the color pictures for our first deadline.

While the yearbook photographers will bitterly remember the sponsor's anguished screams about "cost of materials, slow delivery time, missed assignments, and lost pictures," I hope they will also remember my appreciation of their talent and their unselfish giving of hundreds of hours.

To the staffers that endured my "lectures" (dire threats) about "quality of copy, meeting deadlines, lost pictures, condition of the yearbook room, etc.," I especially thank Stacy, Cathy, Wendy, Sally, Scott, Kaye, Faye, and Malcolm. You went the distance and made it happen!

— Mr. W.M. Stephens
